LATEST NEWS

Derby flies the flag for Britain at the EMYAs

The Museum of Making at Derby Silk Mill threw open its doors once again at the end of January, after winter flooding forced its closure for three months. To add to the celebrations, the Derby Museums team was also able to announce that the multi award-winning museum had just been nominated for the prestigious European Museum of the Year Award 2024 (EMYA). The shortlist comprises of fifty museums across Europe and includes two other museums located in the UK, The Burrell Collection (Glasgow), and the Museum of the Home (London). The winners of the EMYA will be revealed in May.

New restaurant shines a light on Derby's Nightingale Quarter

One of Derby's most iconic buildings has been given a new lease of life and is now offering a new dining experience to locals and visitors alike. Located in the newly developed Nightingale Quarter of the city centre, which has been the subject of a £175m redevelopment scheme, The Pepperpot will be housed within the former Derbyshire Royal Infirmary. Located within an air-conditioned glass box extension the restaurant will serve breakfast, lunch & dinner under the watchful eye of head chef Matthew Guy. It will focusing on serving gastro-style food with locally-sourced ingredients. The Nightingale quarter takes its name from the city's historic links with Florence Nightingale.

A Taste of Korea comes to Derby

Korean cocktails, beer and food is on the menu at another new restaurant that has recently opened in Derby. Omomo Korean Street Food & Bubble Tea is located on on The Strand, in the heart of the city centre - and is now serving a wide range of street food dishes such as Korean Fried Chicken in four fabulous sauces including honey and soy, garlic butter, and sweet and spicy; Bibimbaps; and Army Stew, cooked in a hotpot in front of diners. Owner Lesley So named the restaurant Omomo because it is the Korean slang for 'Oh My God'...which is what she hopes people will say once they taste her authentic Korean street food.

A new home for Pyclet Parlour

Derbyshire pyclets have been made in Derby for over 160 years from different locations throughout Derby City from the historic Derby Market Place, through the arches and into the Market Hall and in Derby's Eagle Market. Now, an organisation dedicated to sharing and publicising the history and heritage of the city centre has added a Pyclet Parlour to 11 Sadler Gate. In addition to serving the tasty snack, and selling Derby produce groceries and provisions, the new Derby Heritage Centre, will also sell art and crafts while offering visitors information about the city.

Visitors will be able to see a wide range of domestic, decorative, thrown, sculpted and designed ceramics at Derby Museum & Art Gallery during the weekend of 23 and 24 March. As well as artist talks, workshops and demonstrations, it will also offer visitors plenty of opportunities to invest in ceramics.

Bustler Beer Festival

12-13 April

Renowned as a Beer capital of Britain, Derby loves nothing better than a good Beer Festival - and this promises to be one of the best. Bringing together a selection of the UK's most loved craft breweries, the Bustler Beer Festival will feature local favourites and delicious street food over two separate sessions. Both days will also include a giant pub quiz, pop-up pool and darts room, and live DJs.

Weaving with Waste Workshop

13 April

The Museum of Making will host a one-day Weaving with Waste course in which participants can learn how to warp-up a simple frame loom, plain weave, and then incorporate all sorts of colourful materials which often get thrown away (plastic packaging, old cables, old clothes and jewellery). By the end of the day everyone will have learned how to make a wall hanging, a table mat, a small bag, or a cover for a notebook...out of rubbish. Led by Sarah Cooke, the course runs from 10am to 4pm, and costs £65 per person.
